Consulting and solutions delivery is in our DNA.
Let's have a conversation.™

WELCOME!

Thank you for your interest in getting to know enVista.

When we founded enVista in 2002, we had a vision – to enable commerce and supply chain leaders to improve efficiencies, profitability and customer service. Our client results focus, Guiding Principles and determination ‘to give more in value than we receive in payment’ remain unchanged 20 years later.

Some things have changed, of course. Your commerce evolved from purely physical to physical and digital, as did our solutions and expertise. In fact, we are proud to be the only provider in the market that can truly address complex end-to-end supply chain and omnichannel challenges.

All of this innovation has led to immense growth. However, I am most proud of the enduring relationships we have built and the impact we continue to make on our associates, clients and communities. As a global team, we are aligned and focused on leaving a lasting legacy of growth, innovation, sustainability, DE&I and philanthropy – and having fun while we’re at it.

Solutions delivery is in our DNA. Let’s join forces to build your business – and a better, brighter world – together to enable your vision. I look forward to it.

Sincerely,

Jim Barnes

OUR APPROACH

enVista's Consult-Implement-Operate (CIO) Model

enVista's CIO model is the core of our business. This model sets us apart from other consulting firms that simply consult or implement systems on a project-by-project basis. enVista consults with our clients' teams to understand their business goals and to analyze their operations, from suppliers to consumer. enVista then implements solutions, integrating them to specifically address the client's unique requirements. And, as it makes strategic sense, we will also operate those solutions on their behalf.

As a result of our extensive implementation and operations experience, enVista is intimately familiar with the systems that we recommend and implement. enVista's deep source to consumption experience means our clients can partner with a single, trusted firm that will take a holistic approach to their supply chain and directly address all of their supply chain requirements.

Many of our clients cite their ability to call us with unrelated challenges and our willingness to do whatever it takes to ensure their personal and organizational success as some of the key reasons they partner with us year after year.
