Trading Partner Management

EDI for Shippers and Carriers

enVista®
enabling enterprise commerce™

As the foundation for our solution platform, enVista developed a trading partner managed service that functions beyond traditional EDI with multi-enterprise offerings to deliver secure data between various trading partners.

Carrier Integration Is Critical for Shippers

Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) and collaboration between trading partners is an important value-added service — especially for companies shipping products from point to point and the carriers moving the products from point to point. enVista developed a trading partner managed service that functions beyond traditional EDI with multi-enterprise offerings to deliver secure data between various trading partners.

With enVista's Trading Partner Management solution, you can establish routing rules to dictate what happens when data is shared and how it is processed, translated and distributed. Additionally, you can monitor the entire process and control how the files are sent over what protocol by warnings, exceptions, successes and correctable mistakes. Features like end-to-end monitoring ensure your processes are completed on time and within expected boundaries.

Functioning much like a "drag-and-drop" business mailbox, our B2B/multi-enterprise integration box provides the most flexible and easy-to-use integrated solution on the market for your business and its most critical supply chain partners. Simply stated, you receive seamless integration as it securely connects with other systems.

Whether it's transferring data from shippers to carriers, or from carriers to shippers, enVista's next generation multi-enterprise integration solution enables true integration of your mission critical information for sharing tender requests, tender responses, carrier status messages, invoices, proof of delivery and other important data points.
